CONCLUSION OF "GOD SPEAKS, PEOPLE SPEAK"

The 53 episodes of "God Speaks, People Speak" provide a unique entry point by using historical and cultural classics. It allows those who are unfamiliar with the Bible but enjoy reading to discover a different experience through familiar paths. It also broadens the horizons of Christians, highlighting the impact of the Bible on history and human society. When sharing the Gospel, it becomes easier to find topics that others are familiar with or interested in.

Many verses in the Bible have become idioms with symbolic meanings, passed down through generations, and often transcending time and space, complementing ancient Chinese idioms. They influence people's concepts, beliefs, and daily lives. These scriptures also showcase the customs and practices of the ancient Near East, such as shepherding, farming, building houses, dividing inheritances, educating the next generation, discerning between good and evil, and resolving conflicts. They help us recognize that throughout history, from ancient times to the present, humanity has never been able to solve the problem of "sin." This understanding makes us cherish the timeless gift of the Bible as our guiding light.

Special thanks to Pastor Charlie for volunteering as the host, and to all the hardworking team members involved in researching and producing the program. "God Speaks, People Speak" is a condensed program, and each segment can be further explored to unveil the Bible's tremendous influence on various aspects of society and culture (literature, art, etc.).

THE "FAMILIES IN THE BIBLE" SERIES COMPLETED

The "Families in the Bible" series has been completed with 52 episodes and has been produced as a bilingual video program in Mandarin and Cantonese. This series not only explores well-known families in the Bible but also sheds light on families that are often overlooked. In particular, the latter may surprise us as we discover that they serve as significant settings through which God conveys important messages to us.
